

Sue Hua St Edmund's RC Primary Godalming. RE coordinator, Y6 class teacher, working group member endorses Wintershall's RE and Virtues Enquiry programme and resources linked to the 'Come and See' RE curriculum

"Over the last year, I have been extremely privileged to work with Rachel and the working party. Being part of the Wintershall education working group has enabled me to contribute to an extremely important resource. The selfless work by those involved is to be commended.

Being so close to God through our collective work is of utmost importance to our future generation. The resources which have been developed by Rachel and her team have strengthened and deepened the children's understanding of the core messages that we try so hard to help children to understand. By using high quality images, visuals, videos, actor viewpoints and extensive planning resources, teachers are equipped to develop the religious literacy of the children in their care.

Having Rachel in school to work with the children to deepen and consolidate their understanding of unconditional love has been truly inspirational. The children thoroughly enjoyed their session. They felt so empowered that they have worked so hard to develop a collective worship session based on their ideas to be delivered to the whole school. I feel so proud of these children but most importantly, the children have taken ownership of their learning and have used the stimulus that Rachel provided them together with they have learnt to plan a brilliant collective worship session.

Sue Hua November 2016